

Back To School

But a few days remain before several hundred school students of this district will return to their desks for another term of study. While many of them will complain now, in a few years they will realize how fortunate children of this nation are in being given the advantage of a superior school system.

Both parents and students should realize the importance of students enrolling the first day, and not delaying for a few days or even weeks. It is highly important, from the standpoint of the pupil, the teacher and the class, that every student start the first day if possible.

Punctual attendance is another vital factor in school life. Irregular attendance not only keeps the pupil from advancing as fast as his classmates, but causes the district to lose money. Parents should bear in mind the fact that money is apportioned to each district on a basis of the pupils daily attendance and every day at home means that much money lost to this district.

Didsbury Schools start on Monday September 1st.

Splendid Crops West Of Didsbury

In driving through the country west of town, last week-end, it was gratifying to observe the splendid crops to be seen on every hand.

The good weather that has prevailed is allowing the work of harvesting to proceed very rapidly and by now, practically all the wheat will be harvested. The yield generally, promises to be good and we hear of several fields where it is expected the yield will go as high as forty and fifty bushels per acre.

The quality of the wheat appears to be very good and excepting the crops damaged by hail, nearly all of the wheat is expected to go into the higher grades.

Several of the farmers in the district are hoping to be able to start threshing operations during the coming week.

Symptoms Of Infantile Paralysis Explained

Owing to the recent outbreak at several points in the province of this dread disease the Department of Health at Edmonton has given a short synopsis of the symptoms.

They should be studied carefully. The physical signs on which one may make a diagnosis are fairly characteristic. There is prostration, which is out of proportion to the temperature, the latter being as a rule, under 102 fahrenheit. The face is flushed, expression is anxious, and there is frequent pallor around the nose and mouth. The throat is mildly infected, but not enough in itself to account for the child's condition.

The pulse is usually rapid, out of proportion to the temperature.

Cause Of Our Economic Ills

Anything and everything that will have even the slightest effect in removing causes of friction between nations on the one hand, or of promoting goodwill on the other hand, should to an ever increasing degree receive the support of every government, every organization, every individual. There is danger as we get farther and farther away from the agony of the war years, 1914-1918, and as the horrors of that grim struggle begin to fade and become indistinct in our memories, to forget just how awful war really is.

It is well, therefore, to be occasionally reminded of what the Great War continues to mean to us today, twelve years after it passed into history. Hon. Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, whose outstanding characteristics in all his public speeches is his clear incisiveness, unswayed by hysteria or undue sentiment, gave a radio talk recently in which he pleaded for world peace, and for the putting forth of every effort to attain that object.

Despite Mr. Snowden's well known pacific tendencies, he dealt only with the mere dollars and cents aspect of war as an agent of destruction. Taking the case of Great Britain, he pointed out that it had spent some 50,000 million dollars on its part in the Great War. This was apart from the loss of the wealth-producing capacity of millions of men drawn for four years from useful employment, and, of course took no cognizance of the loss of life.

The war, as Mr. Snowden pointed out, left Great Britain with a debt of over thirty-five billions of dollars, the interest on which alone costs one and three-quarter billions a year. It all has to come out of taxation.

At the present rate of payment, Mr. Snowden added, it will take 140 years to wipe it out. Today the British people are raising $5,000,000 every day, $200,000 every hour, $3,000 every minute for debt purposes. It takes the whole-time labor of 2,000,000 workers year in and year out to pay the annual cost of the nation's burden of debt. To this must be added $575,000,000 which Britain annually spends on war services, and $280,000,000 it pays yearly for war pensions, which gives a total of $2,600,000,000—$5,000 a minute,—which Great Britain has to provide for war purposes.

Such stupendous figures throw Mr. Snowden's main point into bold relief. "It passes the power of the most imaginative mind," he said, "to conceive what prosperity and happiness could be added to the world if the resources wasted by war could have been used for the advancement of human wealth." But even the least imaginative mind must realize from the figures that now is the time for all good men and women the world over to ponder the folly of preparing for another war.

The great economic ill from which the world is suffering today,—and from which Canada unfortunately is not free,—could all be overcome if the huge amounts raised by taxation to pay war debts could be diverted into constructive channels, not to mention what might have been done had the enormous principal sum expended during the war itself been devoted to improving world conditions in all countries.

If the money spent waging war, by Britain alone, had, instead, been devoted to great constructive national programmes, there would have been no unemployment in Britain. Everybody would have been busy during the past twelve years, and everybody would be hard at work now. The whole standard of living in Britain would have been raised; housing and all social conditions would be on a higher plane than ever in the world's history.

And what would have been true of Great Britain would be equally true of all countries, Canada included. It is easy to thoughtlessly lay the blame for unemployment, depressed business conditions, falling markets, and sundry other ills to this cause and that cause, and to lay the blame here or there, but the basic cause is the war, and the huge burden it has imposed on all peoples and on every constructive, progressive movement that the peoples of the world, in their several countries, are anxious to carry on.

Campaigning for world peace is not a fad, nor the mere business of the idealist. It is the hardest headed business proposition confronting the world today. In its success is bound up the future welfare of every worker, every man and woman, the future of their children and children's children,—indeed their very lives. Only through the achievement and maintenance of world peace can the present economic ill of the world be remedied.

A Clock That Speaks

Combination Radio and Electric
Phonograph Is Result Of Experiment

After considerable experimentation, an inventor has produced a clock that speaks the time. The instrument consists of a combination talking clock, radio and electric phonograph all installed in a grandfather case. The clock not only speaks the hours and half hours, but also may be made to tell the time in the form of a cheerful greeting, such as "Good morning—six o'clock." The cabinet contains an electric radio receiver with dynamic speaker which is used for the talking clock voice, the radio, and the phonograph reproduction.

Served Long Time

One Man Worked On Farm In England Over Half a Century

Some extraordinary farm service records were revealed by the awards to servants and laborers, in connection with the Lincolnshire Agricultural Society's annual show held at Skegness, England. In the class for servants in husbandry who have worked on the same farm for the greatest number of years, Samuel Benton, of Horncastle, aged 74, took the premier award, his record being 55½ years with Messrs. W. Crowder and Sons, of Horncastle. The second prize winner, aged 83, William Goodwin, of Rippingale, South Lincs., had 53 years' service to his credit.

It might be worse. Suppose we were born old and had to dread growing young and foolish.

Present Low Prices No Cause For Despondency To Pool Members

In the editorial columns of the Alberta Farmer, dated July 10, 1930, reference is made to the fact that in spite of the existing depression in the wheat market, Pool members are not despondent. We quote from the editorial:

"On the contrary, when they look back to pre-Pool days they congratulate themselves that the Pool is functioning in this year of low prices. And they shiver when they think to what depths wheat prices might have gone had there been no Pool."

This new blood strengthens the nerves and gives vitality to the whole body. Concerning them Mrs. G. U.S. Trade Slump

Declines To Lowest Level In The Last Six Years

International trade of the United States during June declined to the lowest monthly level the country has experienced in the last six years.

Exports amounted to $229,000,000, a figure less than that of any month since July, 1924.

Imports for the last month were $255,000,000, which is lower than those recorded since January, 1922. Imports and exports for June were each approximately $100,000,000 below those for the same month last year.

Gems Belonging To Nobility Lost In Airplane Crash

The London Daily Express says jewels valued at $65,000 (about $325,000), were scattered over the ground near Meopham, Kent, at the time of the recent aeroplane disaster in which six persons, including three of the nobility, perished.

The jewels in question belonged to the late Viscountess Ednam and the late Mrs. Loeffler, both of whom were wearing pearl necklaces and diamond brooches.

Accidental discovery of a few gems by a villager reminded friends of the dead women that they had their jewelry with them. Police are searching around Meopham in the hope of finding others.

Prices Of Livestock Reveal Remarkable Strength Compared With Other Farm Products

In the price changes that have taken place in farm products, as also in other commodities, in the last 12 months, livestock food products stand up with outstanding strength. Lambs, hogs, and cattle—in that order—are now at a much higher level relative to the value of the same products a year ago than are butter, wool, wheat, and barley.

Prices for farm products in Canada have changed considerably since last summer and especially during expressed as a percentage of the prices existing in July, 1929, which are taken as the base of 100. The table on this page gives both the monthly prices and the percentages that each month's price for each item forms of the base price. In the chart only the percentage changes are shown.

A glance at the right hand side of the chart will make it plain that at the end of the period three items, lambs, hogs and cattle, were well above butter and far above wool, the first half of 1930. The tendency of all classes of livestock, wheat, feed grain, butter, and wool, which are fairly representative of general farming, has been downward.

A noteworthy feature is that the price level of livestock has not dropped so much as that of other farm products and they are the only items to show seasonal strength within the last two months.

The accompanying chart shows the percentage changes in relation to each other and in each commodity. The monthly average prices as reported officially have been taken and the changes from month to month wheat, and barley in comparison with prices a year ago.

For the twelve months, therefore, it is evident that these three classes of livestock have declined less in price than other farm products and other commodities. They have shown fluctuation up and down, but their general level has been better maintained than in the other items.

If a lesson had to be pointed out it would be that meat-yielding livestock is a more productive form of farm husbandry than it is often considered. This is especially so at present with the low levels reached by grains and other feeds.

Western Flour Mills Industry Ranks First In Manufactures In Alberta and Saskatchewan

The flour and grist mill industry ranks first among the manufactures of two of the three prairie provinces. This industry comes first in both Saskatchewan and Alberta, and second in Manitoba. First position in Manitoba is held by slaughtering and meat packing, which is third in Saskatchewan and second in Alberta. Second position in Saskatchewan is occupied by butter and cheese, which is fourth in Manitoba and fourth also in Alberta. In point of production value, flour and grist mill products in Alberta, and slaughtering and meat packing in Manitoba were almost equal in 1928, the former having a value of $21,005,000, and the latter of $21,328,000.

Creamery Butter Production In Prairie Provinces Shows Increase Over Last Year

Exhibition Grain

Grain To Be Shown At World's Grain Show May Be Grown Any Year

There still seems to be a wrong impression in some parts of Canada regarding the year in which grain for exhibit at the World's Grain Show may be grown, says a bulletin of the show executive. It is well, therefore, to repeat that there is absolutely no restriction whatever regarding the season in which grain for exhibit is grown.

It may have been or may be grown in any year. Of course, because all exhibits must be in the hands of the exhibition authorities at Regina on or before March 1, 1932, it will be impossible to grow Canadian grain for exhibition in 1932. Canadian grain for exhibit therefore, if not already grown, must be grown either this season or during the season of 1931.

The latest summary of conditions in the dairy industry by the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture affords some observations of interest:

Pasteurized butter graded during June, this year, amounted to 150,962 packages, an increase of 18,162 packages over the same period last year. For the year to date the 1930 figure at 288,511 is 8,024 packages ahead of last year.

Cheese graded during June, this year, totalled 206,178 boxes, or 17,384 boxes less than last year. The total for the year to date at 317,435 boxes is below last year, but there is an increase in the number of boxes grading "special" this year.

There was an increase of 245.66 per cent. in the volume of creamery butter in storage in Canada as at June 1, 1930, over the amount in store last year on the same date; and an increase of 439.87 per cent. in the volume of dairy butter in store. Creamery butter in store June 1, 1930, amounted to 10,798,828 pounds; dairy butter in store—361,035 pounds.

Cheese in store the same date amounted to 6,471,834 pounds, or 38.43 per cent. less than last year.

The export of cream and milk to the United States has practically ceased since the tariff of 68 cents per imperial gallon on cream came into effect on June 18. Much of the cream into butter.

Creamery butter production in the Prairie Provinces shows a steady increase over last year—increases during May were: Manitoba, 20.5 per cent; Saskatchewan, 7.7 per cent; and Alberta, 15.1 per cent over May of last year.

Pastures and Proteins

Work Carried Out Which Will Be Of Great Interest To Dairymen

The value of pastures depends very largely on the amount of proteins—green feed—available to the cattle using them. In this connection the studies of "close grazing" now being made by experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture are of special interest. While still in the experimental stage the work already done holds much of interest for the dairymen. Briefly put, the object of close grazing is to provide an adequate and continuous supply of green fodder from succulent new herbage growth. This is done through the division of a suitable field area into four equal sections. While the herd grazes for a week on one section the new growth, rich in protein, is developing in the others. In this way a new pasture with three weeks growth of new herbage is regularly available.

Creates a New Record

Crop Report For British Columbia Is Very Gratifying

British Columbia's annual crop report issued by the Department of Agriculture shows that agricultural production for the year 1929 totalled $62,632,890, which is an increase of $3,968,647 over that of the previous year and creates a new record. While this increase is due to some extent to prevailing high prices, substantial increases are noted in the volume of production of livestock, poultry products, dairy products, grains, honey, wool, hops and vegetables other than potatoes.

National Map Of Canada

Area Of Canada Is Greater Than That Of Europe

The area of Canada is calculated to be 3,684,723 square miles, an area greater than that of Europe. Of this area only a small fraction has been adequately mapped. The Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, is engaged in mapping portions of the country and is issuing as rapidly as possible sheets of the National Topographic Map of Canada. During 1926 four such sheets were published, nine in 1927, eleven in 1928, and seventeen in 1929.

Beef Grading

Doing Much To Strengthen the Demand For Better Qualities Of Beef

The beef grading policy of the Dominion Livestock Branch is not only providing a real service to the Canadian consumer and producer in clearly identifying the true qualities of beef, but is also attracting attention in the British market. The Imperial Food Journal, a recognized authority on market conditions in the Old Country says: "The introduction of beef grading in Canada, whereby the two top grades are marked for the information and protection of the public, is doing much to strengthen the demand for the better qualities of beef. This should tend to promote the raising of better grades of cattle and the finishing of animals before they are sent to market." The same authority forecasts an early return to volume exports of Canadian live cattle to Britain.

Automobile Accidents

The majority of automobile accidents are directly traceable to poor health of the drivers, according to a recent report made to the French Academy of Medicine. A commission has been appointed by the Academy to probe further into the study and exert pressure on the government to include a physical examination in the requirements for a driving license.

A GRAVE WARNING IS ISSUED TO THE FARMERS

(By H. G. L. Strange)

The Dominion Entomologists of Lethbridge and Saskatoon, H. L. Seamans and K. M. King, have issued a very grave warning to all farmers in Alberta and Saskatchewan regarding the great damage to crops that may occur next year because of the cutworm.

The dry May and part of June that has been experienced in most parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan this year has tended enormously to increase this insect pest, and it is expected that unless May and June of 1931 are much wetter than is usually the case, that the greatest and most widespread damage that has ever been experienced will result from cutworms. Most of Saskatchewan south of Saskatoon, it is expected, will be badly affected, with the worst damage within a hundred mile radius of Regina. In Alberta the damage will probably be very general east of a line from Edmonton to Macleod and as far south as the Lethbridge-Medicine Hat line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The damage to the 1931 crop will depend absolutely upon the way fields are handled this present August and September. The moth of the cutworm flies across the fields and lays its eggs, starting in the first few days of August, reaching its maximum flight about the 20th, and continuing to fly and lay eggs until about the middle of September. The moth will avoid all land that has had even a very slight crust formed upon it by rainfall, but will lay its eggs upon any soil where this crust has been broken, however slightly. To avoid cutworm damage on a field, therefore, it is necessary that on summer-fallowed fields all work should stop by the first of August or a very few days afterwards. Then a very slight rain will form a crust on these fields, which will render them immune the following year from cutworm damage. It is important that no horses or stock or implements or wagons shall be allowed to cross any summerfallow prepared in this fashion, because wherever the crust is broken by animals or implements, there the moth will lay its eggs, and considerable damage will be experienced the following year. On fields in crop, where harvesting operations are conducted before about September 1st, then damage the following year is almost certain to be experienced unless these fields are summerfallowed.

It is apparent, therefore, that all fields which are cropped this year, as far as possible, should be summerfallowed in the year 1931, and that in addition all work on summerfallowed fields this year should cease as soon after August 1st as possible, and that nothing should be allowed to walk over or cross these fields.

A meeting of Westdale Municipality was held at their offices on Saturday. All the councillors except Councillor Carlson were present. The council discussed the program for roadwork and decided that after about a ten days cessation for harvest, the full road program for the year would be completed. No other important business transpired but the passing of the payroll and accounts.

H. L. Seamans, Dominion Entomologist stationed at Lethbridge Laboratory, without hesitation states that it is far better to allow weeds to grow on the summerfallow after August 1st in these affected areas, rather than to disturb the crust of the soil and so invite cutworm damage.

WOMEN OUTNUMBERED MEN AS PASSENGERS

A few weeks ago one of the big railway systems of Canada furnished a two weeks' check on the sex of passengers in the height of summer travel and it was found that 80 per cent of the travellers in the summer are women and 20 per cent men. This disparity does not exist all the year-round. A similar check taken in the winter discloses that there is practically an even break between the number of female and male travellers.

NEW CALENDAR MAY BE USED IN 1933

Mr. Moses B. Cotsworth, expect of the League of Nations on calendar reform and director of the International Fixed Calendar League, was in Ottawa this week and stated that it was his hope that the new calendar will be put into operation all over the world in 1933.

On July 1st postal authorities of 80 nations, including Canada, began making settlements in periods of two and four weeks, thus instituting a practical 13-month calendar. Following his visit to the main centres in Canada Mr. Cotsworth said he expected to visit in China and Japan, Egypt and Turkey.

Canada is the only government in the Western Hemisphere which has not recorded its desire to participate in the next international conference of delegates which will assemble in 1931 in Geneva, where the 13-month calendar will be fully discussed.

"Manitoba has the promise of the best crop in its history; British Columbia agriculturally is in splendid shape, and Saskatchewan and Alberta are likely to have average crops. I estimate a crop of between 350 and 400 million bushels this year."

Col. Rattray stated that one of the causes of crop failure in certain districts of the West this year has been due to wind drift, which spoiled the early spring growth. Investigations showed that this has occurred in districts where the combines were used and the long stubble burned off and the ordinary fibre of the top soil was spoiled. However, new methods are rapidly being followed by the farmers to offset this disadvantage of the combine, which has greatly cheapened labor costs in the harvesting.

Business conditions as a whole, retail and wholesale, are from 10 to 12 per cent. below normal in the West, but there is a hopeful spirit due to the prospects of a new crop, according to Col. Rattray.

OUT DOOR LIFE CALLS FOR NOURISHING FOOD

By AMY SMITH
Well Known Domestic Science Authority

Off for a day or a month—in the car or hiking, boating, fishing—after a few hours you will find FOOD looms up as the biggest thing in the world. Scenery, yes—but such appetites!

Of course milk, and plenty of it, is essential for nourishing, appetizing food—and for campers or picnickers Borden's St. Charles Brand Evaporated Milk is by far the best choice, providing plenty of pure, rich milk, regardless of weather conditions, rough journeys, out-of-the-way camping places—and lack of ice.

Because Evaporated Milk has had half the water removed, you can rely on its extra richness, which can be utilized to take the place of eggs or butter in many kinds of cooking. For instance, an old guide, famous for his fish fries, told me that in camp he always dipped the fish in undiluted Evaporated Milk before the final coating with corn meal.

When Evaporated is to be used instead of milk in any recipe it should be diluted with an equal part of water. Remember this simple rule and you will find it successful in your own recipes. To "cream" your coffee, use it undiluted.

Speaking of Fish—
a "fry pot" is used by Canadian guides for cooking large chunks. After dipping the pieces of fish in Evaporated Milk and then in cornmeal drop into the deep fat (very hot) and fry until brown. And, by the way, take this hint from seasoned camp cooks—a very little piece of the right kind in the right place (if possible sheltered from the wind) will do the job better than a face-blistering conflagration.

A savory fish chowder is always a welcome dish in camp, and it's easily made with Evaporated Milk.

Fish Chowder

Cut the fish in chunks and remove as many bones as possible. Cover the bottom of an iron pot with slices of fat salt pork and fry out part of the fat. Remove part of the pork slices, then add a layer of sliced, raw potatoes, some sliced onions and a layer of fish. Cover with pieces of hard tack biscuit and season each layer, scattering the salt, for the pork is very salty. Repeat the process until the pot is two-thirds full. Add just enough water to cover to level of the fish. Cover the pot and simmer for one and one-half hours, or until the potatoes and fish are tender. Add one tall can of Borden's St. Charles Milk. Bring just to boiling. Serve.

Easy Hot Breads

Hot corn breads to eat with the bacon, fish, or pork and gravy, are a huge success after a day in the open—or to begin the day.

Cornmeal Flapjacks

1 cup cornmeal.
1 cup flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
1 cup Borden's St. Charles Milk.
1/2 cup water.
2 tablespoons melted fat (bacon fat may be used).

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Add the milk, diluted with water, and beat well. Add the fat. Bake on a hot, greased griddle or frying pan. They need a little longer cooking than wheat griddle cakes.

Camp Corn Dodgers

Put one quart cornmeal into a bowl. Make a hollow in center of meal and into this put one tablespoon lard and one teaspoon salt. Pour over this equal parts Borden's St. Charles Milk and water heated to scalding point, stirring all the time until a dough is formed which can be molded with hands. Cool slightly, form into cakes and cook slowly on a well greased griddle. (The quantity of diluted milk needed depends on the kind of cornmeal used.)

Lost Purse Is Found

Pocketbook Lost Eight Years Ago Is Recovered In Corn Field

A pocketbook containing $35 lost eight years ago, was recently recovered by the loser. Back in 1922 Jacob Slagh, a Michigan farmer, was assisting his brother-in-law, Koene Vanden Bosch, harvest hay and lost his pocket-book. Vanden Bosch while cultivating corn in the same field spied the purse, so worn it fell apart when handled. It was carefully kept together and brought to its owner who turned it over to the United States treasury department for redemption of the currency it contained.

A Strange Mongol Tribe

Have Qualities Of Wild Animals and Live In Caves

A tribe of wild men in North Manchuria, who never lie down, but always sleep sitting up with their feet crossed like Buddhas, so that they may rise and run in a second, is described by a correspondent of a Chinese newspaper. The correspondent claims to have visited the tribe.

The strange people are called Orunchuns, he declares, and they live in Kolombairh, North Manchuria. They are so primitive that they have no social organization, no chief or elders.

The men of the tribe, says the correspondent, have the qualities of wild animals. They can out-run foxes and wolves, and often overtake and kill such animals. They hunt like wolves in bands, and do not hesitate to attack Manchurian tigers.

They have no homes, but seek caves and sheltered parts of the mountains in which to sleep. They usually travel by day.

The correspondent says the Orunchuns have a spoken language entirely their own, with a very limited vocabulary, but no written language. They speak in low tones very agreeable to the ear, much resembling the twitter of birds.

In winter they wear the skins of wild animals which they have killed, but in summer go naked. They do not understand cooking, and tear and devour the flesh of animals. They understand the use of bows and arrows, which they get from Russians, but cannot make them for themselves.

It is very dangerous to go among them, the correspondent says, and they are known to have killed several travellers who were unduly curious to study their habits.

Muskrats For Scotland

Order Sent To Canada For Twenty Thousand Skins

Scotland knows a good thing when it sees it and has sent out a call for 20,000 Canadian muskrats of the finest type and color. The only joker in the Scotch demand is that they don't want the beastie on the hoof, but only want his hide. Practically 90 per cent. of all the fur coats made in Scotland today are of muskrat skins and the popularity of this type of fur is steadily on the increase.

Shortage Of Small Coins

French business men recently complained to the Ministry of Finance that there was an insufficiency of 50 centimes (approximately 2 cents) pieces in circulation and demanded a new stamp. The ministry estimates that there are 446,000,000 50 centime-pieces in circulation.

CHAPTER XXIII.

If there had been any doubt that Wickfield would accept Doctor Howe's assistant, it was dispelled when he successfully removed Diantha Moore's appendix.

"And no wonder," the old doctor said to Grandma, a week after the operation. "There wasn't time to take the child to the hospital. There wasn't even time to get a nurse. It's no easy thing to perform an operation under such circumstances. I felt like cursing the deacon for his parsimony in not having had his house wired for electric lights; but I'll say for Luella that her lamp chimneys shone like nothin' before seen in heaven or on earth! And somehow, we did the job. The first week's past and no complications have arisen—except Edgar! He asked me tonight if they couldn't get along without the nurse we got from Portland the next morning."

"I presume that poor Luella will never hear the last of the expense," sighed Grandma, "but I shan't waste too much pity on her because she put her head into the noose with her eyes open. Well, Edward, it's a long time since I've seen you to have a talk. With a doctor right in the house I haven't bothered you when I had an ache or pain—not that I'll ever feel the same to any doctor that I do to you," she added loyally.

The old man smiled. "I'm only a habit, Polly," he reminded her. "You can trust John Carter, take my word for it. It's going to be easier leaving you all when my time comes, knowing you're in good hands. It was a fortunate day for me when I brought him here."

"And fortunate for us, too, Edward. I don't know how we'd manage without him to tend the furnace now Charmian's away all day. But you mustn't talk about leaving us. Whether we send for you or not, it's a comfort to know you're here. Maybe I'll go first, Edward, and be on hand to greet you in the heavenly kingdom!"

"Perhaps you will," the doctor admitted, smiling, "but I hope not, Polly. I'd rather know that you were down here keeping watch over Wickfield from this window, and making a home for that dear girl of ours. I'd hoped to see her settled before I go, with some good fellow to take care of her. I had a method in my madness when I sent John Carter to board here; but as far as I know my hopes have borne no fruit!"

"I don't mind admitting—to you," responded Grandma, "that some such notion has occurred to me. They're congenial, and though he doesn't look over and above husky, I guess Charmian's strong enough to make up for anything he lacks. He's got a good disposition, and he's not fussy about his food. He's good to look at, too; but between you and me, Edward, I don't know what's keeping 'em apart unless it's Jimmy Bennett."

The doctor glanced up in surprise. "I had an idea that all that was settled before Jim went to California."

"Then you guessed wrong," replied Grandma with decision. "What made you think so?"

"Something Jim said to me before he went. I thought that was what reconciled him to leaving Wickfield. Well, it's possible that I misunderstood; and I'm not rooting for my young doctor if it's going to hurt Jim Bennett, Polly; you can bank on that. I never knew a finer, cleaner chap than Jim."

"Well," said Grandma, "I suppose these young folks will have to settle it themselves, Edward. The best meaning friends and relatives are not much use at such a time. But it looks to me as if Jim was destined to spend his life picking peaches for his mother."

"I'd rather he picked one for himself, Polly!" said the old man whimsically. "As Edgar Purdie is fond of quoting: 'It is not good for man to live alone,' and no one realizes that truth better than I; I've had a happy life, and, I hope, a useful one; but I never come in after the day's work that I don't wonder how it would seem if Kate were there to greet me. No, I don't want either of those boys to live as I have."

"You'll come again soon?" asked Grandma wistfully, as her old friend picked up his shabby bag, and prepared to leave.

"Yes, I'll drop in often. From now on I'm going to take things easier and see more of the folks I really care for. Good-night, Polly. Give my love to Charmian."

He was as good as his word. As the relentless New England winter gave way to warmer days, Charmian became accustomed to finding the old doctor sitting with Grandma when she returned from school. Yet he had not given up his work by any means. There were still some who would have none of the younger man while they could get the old; there were others to whom his very presence meant so much that he could not forsake them; and there were the poor and lonely who needed no medicine save his cheery greeting.

Spring was coming. Its breath was in the air despite patches of snow that lingered tenaciously in shady places.

"I'm filled with a longing to clean house," said Charmian, coming in on the two old folks one afternoon.

"Pussy willows are out, though I thought they'd never come; and the frogs are peeping."

She stooped to kiss her grandmother, and when the doctor said, "Haven't you another of those to spare, child?" she kissed him, too.

"You're to have supper with us, Doctor," she commanded. "We'll have a party—you and Grandma, and Doctor John and I. I've simply got to do something to celebrate the return of spring. I feel as if I could hardly wait for the first May flowers!"

"I'll stay," said the doctor. "Only don't make company of me, my dear."

"I want to make company of you," laughed Charmian. "I feel exactly like company. I shall get out the gold-banded china and use the Davis teapot thought it's far too large. Here's John. If he's not too busy I'll make him help."

To judge from the voices and laughter issuing from the kitchen a bit later, the young man was not too busy to whip cream. Charmian mixed up some biscuits. She arranged her pussy willows as a centerpiece, and got out the very last of Grandma's precious damask to grace the board. It was a gay little supper. The old folks recalled the past to their heart's content, while the young folks listened and laughed and sympathized. The young people did their share of the talking, too; and their audience was fully as sympathetic. Even a telephone call to South Wickfield for Doctor Howe, did not mar the party.

"At least," said Charmian, "they let you finish supper!"

"And I'll go with you as chauffeur," declared John Carter, as the old man arose.

The doctor smiled happily at them all, and said: "I've had a beautiful time. Good-night, Polly."

He stooped, and with old-time gallantry kissed Grandma's hand; then turned to Charmian and kissed her cheek.

"There are compensations for being over seventy," sighed John Carter, and they all laughed.

"Good-night," said the old doctor again as he reached the door. "Sweet dreams to both of you."

Afterwards they remembered that he had stood for an appreciable moment looking back into the room, as if to impress the scene upon his memory. And that night, his day's work done and his house in order, the old man crossed the River, so gently, so peacefully, that he did not even know he had embarked.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Grandma sat at the window, looking out at a strangely deserted Main Street—waiting.

All Wickfield, she thought, must be at the church, paying the last tribute of respect and love to its old physician. The bank was closed; and the schools, also. Charmian had begged to stay at home so that her grandmother need not be alone at this sad time; and Lizzie Baker had done likewise, the tears straggling unnoticed down her cheeks as she implored: "Please let me. You mustn't stay here by yourself."

Salina Knowles had said: "I'll stay with you, Grandma. The doctor wouldn't want you to be alone."

But Grandma, refusing all these kindly offers, had replied gently: "I'd rather be alone, if you don't mind. It's what I want."

"Do Not Hesitate to Try It"

"Your Vegetable Compound is a good medicine. Anyone who is in poor health should not hesitate to try it. When I was taking the Vegetable Compound I tried the sample Liver Pills I found in the package. I have taken them every night since and I can feel myself improving. I am so thankful for the good they do me that I have told several women about it."—Mrs. G. W. Posliff, 263 Huron St., Stratford, Ontario.

Small text at the bottom of the advertisement.

Doubtfully, sorrowfully, they had turned away, to be reassured by the young doctor, who, even more than Charmian, understood the old lady's mood.

"Don't you see," he explained at sight of their troubled faces, "it'll be easier for her with no one by? She's not even as sad about it as we are. She knows that her old friend is not dead—he is 'just away.' Leave her alone."

So Grandma sat at the window, waiting. . . .

"It's the sort of day that Edward always loved," she mused. "Spring's in the air, and summer's on the way. And he went just as he hoped he'd go. I remember he said only the other day, 'And may there be no sadness of farewell, when I embark.' He got what he deserved, a peaceful ending to a useful life. . . . What more could a body ask? . . . He's with his Kate, whom he loved and mourned for fifty years. . . . Maybe he's seen Father already, and told him how I sit by the window all day long watching the passing . . . and about Charmian, and the neighbors. . . ."

For a moment she closed her eyes. Then the song of a bird in the elm tree broke the stillness, and she said softly: "The services must be 'most over now. . . . He told Mr. Merry once to make 'em short—for him. Just the Lord's prayer (he wanted every one to join in it, he said), and for Mr. Merry to read 'Crossing the Bar' . . . not much more. . . . It must be over now. . . . Yes—they're coming. . . ."

In Memory of Canadian Poet

Memorial Erected To Bliss Carman In Fredericton, N.B.

The house in Fredericton, N.B., where Bliss Carman, noted Canadian poet, was born, has been memorialized. A bronze tablet on the front of the house was recently unveiled. The inscription on the tablet reads:

"In this house Bliss Carman, Canadian bard and internationally loved poet, 1861-1929. This tablet is erected by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire in New Brunswick. Earth of my mother earth, spirit to Thee."

This is the first memorial erected to Bliss Carman, who died in Connecticut, June 8, 1929, and whose remains were brought to his native home by the Government of New Brunswick and buried at Forest Hill Cemetery, Fredericton, where a suitable monument will mark his grave. It is proposed to erect a statue of this famous son of New Brunswick in the capital of his native province and the city where he spent his boyhood days.

Mysterious Fossil Bones

Many Queer Catches Made By North Sea Fishermen

The barnacled tusk of a mammoth found in the nest of a Grimsby trawler, is but the latest of many queer catches made by North Sea fishermen. Not a few of the fishermen's gardens along the Norfolk coast are ornamented with fossil bones of the cave bear, elk, bison, rhinoceros, and mammoth, brought up at various times by the trawls, chiefly in certain regions about fifteen miles off Grimsby, sometimes called "the graveyards" or "the silver pits." Geologists suggest that the remains come from what was in prehistoric times the valley of the Rhine.

Work For Unemployed

Preliminary survey of the northern part of Saskatchewan, in connection with the provincial government scheme toward solution of unemployment, has been completed, said Hon. J. A. Merkley, Minister of Labor and Industries. The proposed camp scheme can now be inaugurated, he said, in co-operation with officials of the Prince Albert National Park. It has been decided 50 men may now be employed there cutting away dead and burned wood.

course grains to the best advantage. The wheat pool will be carried on as in previous years and the initial payment has been set at 60 c. per bushel for No. 1, fob. Fort William.

Ninth Fortnightly Crop Report

Wheat-cutting is well advanced in the southern part of the Province, general in the central area and has commenced in the northern districts including Peace River.

In the south-eastern area, the quality of grain is high but the yield is uniformly light. Farther west, crops on summerfallow are giving returns of from thirty to thirty-five bushels per acre. On all spring-prepared land, the yields will not be large. Irrigated areas report all crops slightly above average.

In the central eastern part of the province all grains have suffered severely from the drought. Crops are short and in many instances ripening is uneven. Late rains have caused excellent growth on fields reseeded to oats and barley and there will be a fair supply of feed. There have been several severe hail storms in this area which have caused heavy losses.

Rains have been general over most of the province and pastures are much improved. Sugar beets and potatoes are making excellent progress.

In the western and northern areas, prospects are satisfactory in quality and yield. The recent dry period in the Peace River district has slightly reduced the yield of oats and barley. Wheat has not suffered.
